Frequently Asked Questions

Is there a cooling-off period for QLD contracts?

Yes, buyers get 5 business days to cancel with a minor financial penalty. This period can be reduced or waived.

Do I need a building inspection for my new property?

The standard REIQ contract gives the option of a builder's inspection after the contract is signed and to cancel the contract if not reasonably satisfied.

What items are usually included in the sale?

"Fixtures" e.g. hot water systems, fixed air conditioning and pool pumping equipment are included unless otherwise stated. Pool cleaning equipment needs to be specified if included. If in doubt, ask the agent to state whether a particular item is in or out.

How do I appoint Carter Capner Law as my lawyer?

- Tell your Agent to insert our name into your contract;
- Complete the reverse and send direct to us or get your agent to fax;
- Call us on 1300 55 29 08;
- Email us at ccl@cartercapner.com.au.

What if I need to vary the finance or completion date after the contract is signed?

Changes to dates are commonly negotiated but you can't always rely on the other party agreeing to a change. When a buyer asks for more time to settle, it's common for sellers to ask for interest for the delay. If you are a buyer, get an assurance from your bank that they will meet finance and settlement dates.

What should I speak to you about when selling?

You need to consider what fixtures and fittings are included; any alterations you have made to the property; any easements and rights of way; and whether all Warning and Disclosure Statements have been satisfactorily completed.
